

Future Development

It's an exciting time for business to be located in Sierra County. Sierra County is home to many business ventures such as Spaceport America. Approximately 27 miles from Truth or Consequences, the construction of the spaceport is tentatively scheduled to begin in early 2008 and be operational by early 2010. Spaceport America will be home to Virgin Galactic, Star Chasers and the X-Prize Cup. The first successful launch into space was on April of 2007 by UP Aerospace.

Sierra County is along I-25 and is strategically located between I-10 and I-40, making transportation convenient for any business. Developed and undeveloped land is readily available in the county and space is also available at the industrial park and at a new 8,000 acre development.

Residents of Sierra County enjoy a high quality of life. Clean air, clean water, hot spring baths and other amenities make living and working in Sierra County the perfect environment for its citizens and businesses.

Sierra County Economic Development Organization (SCEDO), a non-profit organization, is the point of contact for businesses seeking information or assistance with relocation or expansion and for those wishing to enter into the Mexican market.

Working in partnership with the New Mexico Economic Development Department, SCEDO helps create a favorable working environment for the business community. New Mexico has more than 30 incentives for qualifying companies, including training assistance programs and tax incentives. Sierra County's business climate, labor cost, and tax incentives make this an ideal place to locate your business.
